These technologies are very important for libraries especially in academic libraries because they are working with students, professors, and researchers, and they may have questions about web development or need help with it. Also, libraries are always growing and changing with technology and librarians should have skills on the computer.

It is important to know these web tools because of online information, cataloging and this kind of thing. Libraries are not only books, but it is also more than it with technology and librarians may need to work on the website and for this, they should know about as Html, CSS, JavaScript, etc. web tools.
